Compliance simulation game in practice

The Compliance Simulation game Integrity Now!® is been applied for five years by more than thirty companies.

It is available in several sectoral versions (industry, banks, real estate business, pharmaceutical industry in planning) and in the language versions german, english and spanish.

How does it work?

Start our training session with an introduction to the game. Following this, the participants should play one or two rounds of the game (duration is approximately 90 minutes). You will see that your participants will become immediately captivated by the game.

You can then play another game with different teams or immediately enter into a discussion of the game's scenarios and their best solutions. We recommend your trainer to participate in a „Train the Trainer“ TTT Seminar where our experts discuss the sample solutions with your trainer. Upon request, we can also provide your trainer with additional coaching or we can conduct the game training session on site for you.

Benefits of the game

- > Through the communication between the players and the moderator regarding solving the cases, the participants' understanding and awareness of problems related to compliance are strengthened considerably.
- > The game's fun approach to complex practical situations increases the interest of the participants in the compliance training sessions.
- > The game includes valuable practical tips for the moderators with a comprehensive „Moderator Support Booklet“ which was produced by experts with many years of practical compliance experience.

Objectives of the game

- > Gain experience in one's field of work by means of practical case studies.
- > Correctly assess situations related to compliance.
- > Use the consequences to get a feeling of when which intervention is necessary and which is not.
- > Receive feedback for one's own decisions from other players which leads to employing similar decisions in one's actual field of work.
- > Develop a flexible instrument of action strategies in one's field of work.
